The Clever King

One day two men came to the king with a pouch of gold. Both men said that the pouch was theirs.

The first man was an oil seller. The second man sold clothes. The oil seller said that the cloth seller had come to his shop and stolen the pouch.

The cloth seller said that he had never visited the oil seller's shop.

The king smiled. He asked for a big bowl of water. When the water was brought he asked for the pouch to be put in the bowl.

In a while, drops of oil began to come up on the surface of the water. The king said that the pouch was the oil seller's. As the cloth seller said he had never gone to the oil seller's shop, there should not have been any oil on the pouch.
