Subject : English Language Class : VI

Topic : Composition Writing

Good Morning Students!

In the subject of English Language, today, we will discuss about writing a Composition.

A Composition gives expression to one's ideas or opinions on some topic.

It may also give information on a subject or details of a narrative or description.

An essay consists of a number of well-written and well-arranged paragraphs on the given subject.

An essay is divided into three parts;
*the introduction, *the body of the essay and *the conclusion.

*The introduction should be brief, catchy and arresting.

*The body contains the main subject matter. All the points should be written in a logical sequence.

*The conclusion should be attractive and should leave a strong impression on the reader's mind.

Please note down the given composition in your English Language note-book.

* The Value of Discipline

Discipline is the most indispensable quality of life. It plays an important role in every walk of life. It is essential for every person. It is the backbone of character.

The word 'discipline' comes from the word 'Disciple' which means a learner. So, discipline means learning a code of Conduct. It means learning to obey and observe certain rules which are necessary for a peaceful life. Thus, discipline means a training that teaches self-control, obedience, co-operation and orderliness.

Discipline plays an important role everywhere - in School, family, office and nature. The first lesson of discipline is learnt at home. Family life would be ruined if every person does whatever he likes. It is equally important in schools and colleges.

No office can run without discipline. Every officer must know the duties of his office and work accordingly. Every object of nature works according to the fixed and set principles. Thus Nature follows strict discipline.

Discipline is not contrary to freedom. It brings freedom, as it is the regulated behaviour. It must be learnt and practised. Self-imposed discipline is the right discipline. Our progress, peace and prosperity depend upon discipline.
